

Centre of New Technologies, University of Warsaw, Poland, calls for applications for

RESEARCH GROUP LEADER (Biophysics)

(adjunkt naukowy lub profesor nadzwyczajny naukowy)

We are looking for dynamic group leader to establish independent research group and to develop ambitious and innovative research programme in the field of biophysics. We encourage outstanding researchers, both young and already established, to apply for the post.

Center of New Technologies UW is a new interdisciplinary, scientific unit of the University of Warsaw focused on research and development. Our mission is to contribute to society well educated leaders of science who will provide important research. We are based on close inter-relationship between teaching, scholarship, and research. By supporting young researchers we would like to provide important and innovative solutions to the society in the field of new technologies, computer sciences, medicine, environmental protection, industry and agriculture.

CeNT UW offers a friendly, inspiring and interdisciplinary working environment and research opportunities of the large biomedical campus. CeNT UW is located at the Ochota Campus and has access to state-of-the-art technology, excellent core facilities and supportive administration. Information about research of CeNT UW can be found at http://cent.uw.edu.pl/.

Initial appointment of a group leader is for four years with the possibility of extensions. The new positions will start in summer/autumn 2019. The new research group will be expected to secure extramural, national and international funding.

Successful candidates will have:

- PhD degree in biophysics, physics, molecular biology, biology, biochemistry, biomedicine, bioinformatics or similar and adequate post-doctoral experience,
- Outstanding record of scientific achievements reflected by publication record,
- Original and independent research programme,
- Strong leadership complemented by ability to collaborate,
- Research focus matching CeNT UW scientific profile.

Applications must be written in English and prepared as a single pdf file including:

- Cover letter,
- Curriculum Vitae including a list of publications,
- Description of 1-3 most important scientific achievements (max. 2 pages),
- Summary (2 pages) of the applicant's future research plans,

 Contact details for 2 professional referees who can be contacted for recommendation letters.

Applications should be submitted to recruitment@cent.uw.edu.pl by 15 January 2019. Please, use "Research Group Leader application" as a title of your message.

Short-listed candidates will be invited for interview to be held in Warsaw on 13 - 14 May 2019 during the Council of the CeNT UW meeting.

The final decision will be announced by the end of June 2019.

Inquiries about the offer, research environment and science in Poland are welcome and should be sent to Dr. Michał Wrzesiński (recruitment@cent.uw.edu.pl).
